Cookies A cookie is a small text file that is stored on a user's computer for record-keeping purposes. We may use cookies on this site. We do not link the information we store in cookies to any personally identifiable information you submit while on our site. We may use both session ID cookies and persistent cookies. We use session cookies to make it easier for you to navigate our site and to enhance security on the site. A session ID cookie expires when you close your browser. Log Files As is true of most Web sites, we gather certain information automatically and store it in log files. We use this information, which does not identify individual users, to analyze trends, to administer the site, to track users' movements around the site and to gather demographic information about our user base as a whole. We do not link this automatically-collected data to personally identifiable information. IP addresses are tied to personally identifiable information to prevent and block abusers to keep using our services such as members who violates our terms of service. We may use a third-party tracking service that uses cookies and log files to track non-personally identifiable information about visitors to our site in the aggregate of usage and volume statistics to determine how our users navigate through our website and to know how many users are using our services demographically.

They only share back information with us about the transaction such as your name, item ordered, email address, etc.

Information Sharing and Disclosure We may share aggregated demographic information about our user base with our partners and advertisers or suppliers. This information does not identify individual users. We use non-identifying and aggregate information to better design our Web site and services, and to share with advertisers. For example, we may tell an advertiser that X number of individuals visited a certain area on our Web site, or that Y number of men and Z number of women use a certain service, but we would not disclose anything that could be used to identify those individuals. We do not link aggregate user data with personally identifiable information.
